ABOUT THE LIBRARY

John Lawrence Detwiler Memorial library is centrally located in our campus, the lifeblood of the university's academic life. Dr. Howard Detwiler whose big picture is displayed under the stairs is the Philanthropist who donated an amount to construct the whole library building. His son, John Lawrence Detwiler, studied and took medicine at the University of Sto. Tomas. Right after graduation, he and some friends went scuba diving in Palawan where he met his untimely and tragic death. This is how AUP library was named John Lawrence Detwiler Memorial Library.

THE LIBRARY MISSION

The AUP-JLDM Library is committed to support the research, instructional and curricular requirements of the program offerings of the University by acquiring, organizing, preserving its resources and providing easy access to the resources through retrieval tools and appropriate information services.

COLLECTION

The library's collection consists of print and non-print materials that support all the curricular offerings of the university at the collegiate, master, and doctoral levels. To date, there are approximately 55K+ titles/62K+ volumes of books, subscribed to 3 databases of electronic books and suggested open educational resources (OER). There are 250 titles of foreign and local periodicals in print copy and subscribed to 10 databases of electronic journals and 2 general reference databases. The multimedia Section contains electronic resources like CDROMs, DVDs, and audio-visual materials. Departmental Libraries under the main library are the Elementary, Academy, and Medicine libraries.

CATALOG

The library employs the Dewey Decimal Classification Scheme. Library materials are accessed through an open-shelf system where users can get the books they need and see other related materials in the stack.

The Library's cataloging and circulation services are fully automated. The library Online Public Access Catalog (OPAC) is accessible at <http://webopac.aup.edu.ph>. It contains descriptive information of the books, articles, theses, dissertations and OERs. It also contains abstracts of theses and dissertations.
